BFG Supply to offer pay by scan Stock-Up program is aimed at streamlining supply chain.

BFG Supply Co., a distributor of greenhouse, nursery and lawn and garden supplies, is formally announcing their pay by scan program to independent garden centers at their upcoming Lawn & Garden show in Chantilly, Va. Known as Stock-Up, this program is aimed at streamlining the supply chain for customers.

The company says it sees the program as a way to help customers manage their inventory and create positive cash flow.

“In this type of economy, mitigating risk on inventory is critical,” said BFG Supply President Rob Glockner. “How much longer could a garden center extend their selling season when the risk of over-buying and carrying excess inventory is removed? How many new or unique products have IGC owners wanted to put on their shelves, but chose not to buy them for fear of being left with unsold inventory? Our Stock-Up program is designed to remove these risks, improve cash flow, and provide real-time inventory management through our innovative software.”
